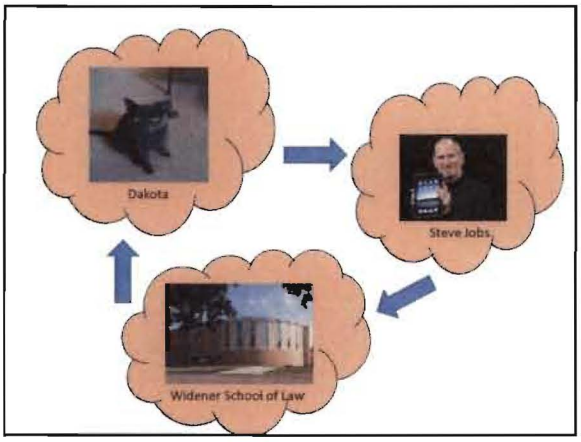
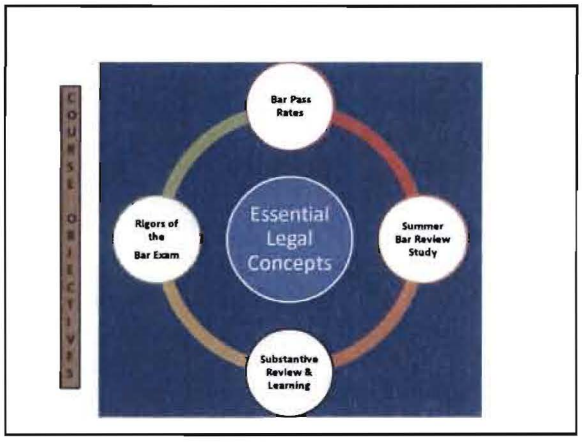
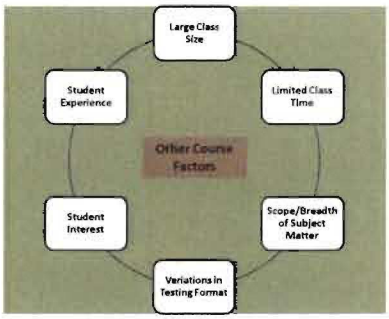
I'm No Steve Jobs – An Allegory of Technology and Law School Course Design

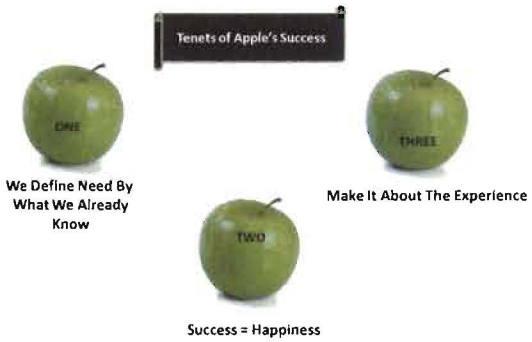
Technology in and Beyond the Classroom
Institute For Law Teaching and Learning
North Carolina Central University – School of Law
March 2012

Professor Micah J. Yarbrough
Director, Bar Programs Office
Widener School of Law - Delaware Campus









Design a course which builds on prior law school experiences in learning and testing, but distinguishes those leading to bar pass success.

- PowerPoint
- TWEN
- Embedded commenting
- Email

Introduce students to Tools & Skills they would use during bar review and on the actual bar exam.

- Streaming Video
- Recorded lectures
- Practice MBE using Clickers
- Professional Feedback using embedded comments

Make the course about the Experience.

- Clickers
- Threaded Discussions
- Quizzo!

ELC Success

IT'S TIME TO PLAY
BAR STUDY
QUIZZO!!

THE ALCOHOL-FREE VERSION

ROUND 1

QUESTION 1

A defendant, who had been previously hospitalized at a mental institution, was charged with the murder of his wife. In his defense, he testified that, at the time he killed her, he believed she was planning to destroy the world by detonating a massive bomb she hid the basement of their home. Obsessed with this thought, he pushed her down the basement steps to her death to prevent her diabolical scheme.

The best defense raised by the defendant's testimony is:

A. Lack of the requisite mental element
B. Lack of the requisite act element
C. Insanity
D. Belief that the situation was justified

QUESTION 2

The Federal Rules of Evidence defines Hearsay as

QUESTION 3

Evaluate the following statement as "True" or "False": The Pennsylvania Board of Bar Examiners expects responses to essay questions to include to citations and case names.

Question 4

Which Widener faculty member, from Augusta, GA, appeared in her 4th grade play wearing a pink dress and white go-go boots and sang "These Boots Are Made for Walking"?

This professor later went on to practice sales tax law in DC where she wore black boots to work.

Question 5

Which Nobel Prize winner received $2000 less than Snookie (from The Jersey Shore) to speak at Rutgers University?