AMERICAN TRIAL COURTS: THEORY & PRACTICE IN THE FEDERAL COURT (4 credits)

American Trial Courts is an exciting experiment in legal education. For the first time in any law school in the country, courtroom practice and classroom theory will converge in one course. Using three required components – 4 hours per week of courtroom observations, enrollment in a related course, and weekly attendance at an integrative seminar – this course offers students a unique opportunity to study the federal court in action, participate in some of its work, and learn from a collaborative team of judges, attorneys, and members of the Touro Law faculty.

Courtroom Observations

During courtroom observations, students spend a minimum of four hours per week in designated courtrooms and then write about the proceedings they have observed, in the form of a journal. Like medical school interns who study their craft by rotating through hospital departments, our students will rotate through courtrooms. The rotations, and the proceedings to be observed, correlate with the substantive legal areas the students are studying in their related courses. Students may observe proceedings at days/times of their choice, but mornings are preferable.

The Court Rotations are: U.S. Bankruptcy Court – Three Weeks
U.S. Magistrate Court – Four Weeks
U.S. District Court – Five Weeks

Related Course

As a prerequisite or co-requisite to enrollment in American Trial Courts, the student must take a course directly related to the work being observed in the courts. These related courses enhance a student's ability to understand her courtroom experiences, and those experiences bring a real life perspective to the related course.

(Note: Evidence is strongly recommended, but not required, as a prerequisite or co-requisite to American Trial Courts)

The Related Course component is satisfied by any one of the following:

Related Course Options:

Civil Rights Law	Criminal Procedure*
Intellectual Property	Employment Discrimination Law*
Bankruptcy Law*	* Offered in Spring 2010 Semester

Integrative Seminar

The course seminar meets weekly on Thursdays from 4:30–6:20 p.m. Depending on the topic or activity scheduled for specific classes, the seminar meets either at the law school or at the Federal Courthouse. During the seminar sessions, the content of courtroom observations and related courses are synthesized, members of the Bar, the Bench and the Academy present their perspectives on the subjects being explored, and students are given opportunities to develop skills necessary to practice law. The seminar sessions are divided into units, each unit corresponding with a specific court rotation.

The first rotation is in the U.S. Bankruptcy Courts. Students spend three weeks, a minimum of twelve hours in total, observing diverse bankruptcy proceedings. The Integrative Seminar correlates those three weeks of observations with three weeks of seminar sessions devoted to the doctrine and practice of bankruptcy law. Here is how it works:

Bankruptcy Session #1:

The Academy Perspective – Touro Law faculty presents Bankruptcy Basics to students. Students who are enrolled in the related course, Bankruptcy Law, are expected to assist in the presentation.

Bankruptcy Session #2:

The Bar Perspective – Practicing Attorneys present the issues they routinely face in their practice, focusing particularly on pitfalls faced by new attorneys. Discussion of cases focus on those cases currently on the dockets of the Eastern District Bankruptcy Judges.

Bankruptcy Session #3:

The Bench Perspective/Student Presentations – All students write a Motion to Vacate A Stay, based on a problem created by a judge, and have the opportunity to argue their motion, in Bankruptcy Court, before participating bankruptcy judges. The judges provide feedback to students on their performance.

Syllabus

Course Description/Requirements

American Trial Courts: Theory & Practice ("ATC") has three separate but interdependent components: (1) court observations, (2) completion of, or enrollment in, a related course, and (3) participation in the integrative program seminar. Using the federal courts as an educational laboratory, the course examines the connections between classroom theory and courtroom practice.

- (1) To satisfy the court observation component, you are required to spend a minimum of four hours per week, as your schedule permits (mornings are preferred), rotating through the federal Bankruptcy, Magistrate and District courts, observing courtroom proceedings and recording your observations and comments in a journal. Your journal entries must be submitted at the conclusion of each of the three units.

At least 1-2 days in advance, you will be advised of proceedings on the court calendar and should plan your observation hours accordingly. Frequently, documents related to the calendared case will be available for your perusal in advance of the court date. I will try to post the calendars and have the materials available at a centralized location – to be determined.

Notes: (1) you are not permitted to bring cell phones into the Federal Courthouse; (2) you ought not bring laptops to court as several judges will not permit you to use it during proceedings; (3) please wear your Touro IDs while in court; if the Judges notice it, it is possible that they will speak with you after proceedings, time permitting.

- (2) The related course is a prerequisite or co-requisite to enrollment in ATC. You should bring your substantive knowledge of that course to the Program Seminar and facilitate discussions that center on the subject matter of that course.
- (3) The two-hour Program Seminar meets weekly and is built around the substantive work of the Bankruptcy, Magistrate, and District courts.

For the seminar, you will be required to:

- Complete readings on procedure and substantive law
- Complete journal entries
- Read copies of case materials related to the proceedings you will be observing in court
- Choose two of the following writings to submit:
 - Motion to Vacate a Stay OR Motion to Preserve Stay (Bankruptcy)
 - Motion to Compel Discovery OR Motion to Protect from Discovery OR Motion to Quash a Subpoena
 - Bail Application Motions or Motions Opposing Bail
- Argue one of the above motions before the Court
- Final writing assignment: “Report and Recommendation” on a habeas corpus motion

Your final grade will be based upon your journals (15%), your two motions (30%), your oral presentation (15%), and your final writing assignment (40%).

ATC satisfies the Intermediate Skills Requirement.
