Institute for Law Teaching and Learning Summer Conference
“Teaching Today’s Law Students”
June 3-5, 2019
Washburn University School of Law
Topeka, Kansas

The Institute for Law Teaching and Learning is thrilled to invite you to its Summer 2019 conference addressing the many ways that law professors and administrators are reaching today’s law students. With the ever-changing and heterogeneous nature of law students, this topic has taken on increased urgency for professors thinking about effective teaching strategies.

Conference Schedule and Topics

Opening Reception: Sunday, June 2, 5:00pm-7:00pm
Conference sessions: Monday, June 3, 8:30am-4:30pm
Tuesday, June 4, 8:30am-4:30pm
Wednesday, June 5, 8:30am-12:00pm

Throughout the conference, we will have plenary sessions from the Institute co-directors and consultants:

- Teaching Today’s Law Students: Opportunities and Challenges – Kelly Terry and Sandra Simpson
- Using Learning Assessment Techniques – Sophie Sparrow
- 50 Ways to Promote Teaching and Learning – Michael Hunter Schwartz and Nancy Levit

Additionally, we have presentations from professors on topics including formative assessment, authentic teaching, specific technology tools, legal writing and editing, inclusion, outlining, fostering a growth mindset, civility, critical reading, metacognition, live critiquing, self evaluation, leadership, and bar success.

We will circulate a schedule with session titles and descriptions as soon as possible.

Works in Progress

On the evenings on June 3 and June 4, we will host a scholarship workshop conversation. If you have a work in progress that you would like to discuss, please let Emily Grant (emily.grant@washburn.edu) know prior to April 12.

Consulting Sessions

Institute consultants Gerry Hess and Sophie Sparrow will be available for individual mentoring sessions throughout the conference for a limited number of participants. Indicate your interest on the registration form, slots will be filled on a first-come-first-served basis, and we will notify you prior to the conference if you have been assigned a meeting time.
